Commissioner Roberts stated that this agenda item stemmed from Board President Miller attending a National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) meeting in Washington D.C. pertaining to the collision of Tank Ship EAGLE OTOME with Cargo Vessel GULL ARROW and subsequent collision with the DIXIE VENGEANCE. He asked the Committee to review the synopsis produced by the NTSB on the accident, but recommend that the Committee await the release of the final report prior to acting on recommendations.

Referencing the NTSB recommendations number 7¹ and number 8² (contained in the synopsis), and addressed to governors of states and territories in which state and local pilots operate, Commissioner Roberts directed the Committee to review the Maritime Institute of Technology and Graduate Studies (MITAGS) curriculum for the SFBP, which dedicates 3.25 hours to fatigue and sleep management. In addition, he referenced the earlier Manalytics, Inc. study that incorporated the reference to 12 hours rest.

Board President Mike Miller recommended that the Committee seek creative solutions, as setting strict guidelines for SFBP may constrain their operations. There are ways to lessen the Minimum Rest Period (MRP) exceptions, but the most obvious, raising the number of licensee's, is not immediately feasible.

The Committee would discuss this agenda further at the next meeting, when NTSB produced a final report on the incident. Commissioner Roberts stated he would bring Section 237(d) data which summarizes the MRP exceptions over a period of time, typically six months.
